Tenure-Track Assistant Professor Positions

The Department of Statistics & Biostatistics at Rutgers University seeks to hire two faculty members at the rank of tenure track assistant professor. Applicants must have a doctoral degree in statistics or a related field by the start of fall semester 2012. Responsibilities of the position include: teaching and academic advising of both undergraduate and graduate students and conducting research. Pursuit of external research funding program is also expected. We are interested in candidates with research and teaching interests in broad statistical areas, particularly but not limited to analyzing high dimensional data and interdisciplinary areas. Applicants are asked to apply online through the website (<http://statistics.rutgers.edu/>) and submit a CV, three letters of recommendation, and other supporting documents. Inquiries should be sent to office@stat.rutgers.edu, or mailed to Search Committee, Department of Statistics & Biostatistics, Rutgers University, 110 Frelinghuysen Road, Piscataway, NJ 08854-8019.
