

03/04/2011

The University of Kansas Medical Center

Company Information: The University of Kansas Medical Center is seeking a Research Assistant Professor within the Department of Biostatistics. As a Research Assistant Professor in Biostatistics, you would play a crucial role in collaborating with research faculty within the School of Medicine and University. The Department of Biostatistics supports the mission of the University of Kansas Medical Center: “to create a positive environment for instruction, research, and service.” Why should you take advantage of this promising opportunity? •As an institution, the School of Medicine ranked 60th among all medical schools in the country. Among public medical schools, we ranked 32nd. •KU is committed to recruiting new physician scientists and fostering an interdisciplinary structure with the basic science programs with the goal of building integrated research programs that will generate new knowledge about pathogenesis and treatment of human diseases and ultimately translating these findings into pioneering initiatives to study and treat disease •Extremely stable work environment; strong state resources and support •University of Kansas ranked among large universities in top five of “2008 Best Colleges to Work For”

Position Title: Research Assistant Professor

Duties & Responsibilities: The position is expected to engage in collaborative research with other faculty from programs and departments within the School and University. The candidate will also be expected to teach courses for graduate students in biostatistics and other disciplines. Expertise within the department includes linear, nonlinear, and longitudinal modeling, clinical trial and experimental design, survival analysis, categorical data analysis, and Bayesian methodology.

Position Qualifications: Required Qualifications Ph.D. in Statistics or Biostatistics or related area. Must be able to communicate effectively with scientists, both orally and in writing. Preferred Qualifications Collaborative medical research experience. Interest in teaching at the professional and graduate student levels.

Salary Range: Negotiable

Benefits: Benefits will be discussed with candidates during the interview process.

Web Site: www.kumc.edu

Application Address: To apply, use the electronic submission website at <http://jobs.kumc.edu>, search by position number M0203380.

Contact Email: biostatistics@kumc.edu

Application Deadline: This position will remain open until filled.

