

FACULTY POSITION
Department of Statistics
The Ohio State University

The Department of Statistics at The Ohio State University (www.stat.osu.edu) is seeking to fill one tenure track Assistant Professor position beginning Autumn Quarter 2011. A Ph. D. in statistics or biostatistics, and demonstrated excellence in teaching and research are required. Candidates should have an interest in methodological research with application to biomedical sciences. Many opportunities for interaction with biological, medical, and computational scientists exist on campus, including through the NSF funded Mathematical Biosciences Institute. Excellent start-up is provided that includes necessary computational support and reduced teaching and service duties for entry level Assistant Professors.

Please send vitae, three letters of reference, and graduate transcripts to:
