

Infrastructure/Energy Planner Statistics Long Range Study Program Assistant Fall Internship

For interns to engage in hands-on experience with querying databases to drive required analysis, applying analytical methods to solve supply and demand problems, resulting in a significant, positive impact on emergency management, specifically fuels in the state of Florida. Develop tools for use by team to support strategic and tactical initiatives. Research, design and implement data models and innovative algorithms to analyze divers source of data to realize actionable results.

- Communicate results to leadership.
- Gather historical Department of Revenue data and
- develop trend analysis
- Determine if there is a normal “Variant” for disasters.
- Determine if same historical trends apply to disasters
- Project future petroleum consumption / demand

Go to <https://www.floridadisaster.org> to apply
Applications due July 26th, 2019